by/par health nexus santé

September 23, 2011

The purpose of this week's bulletin is to provide an overview of some of the issues of the 2011 provincial election that are relevant to preconception, prenatal, and child health. Based on a preliminary scan, we provide links to organizations that provide election information, strategies for bringing attention to important issues, and tools for advocating and engaging political candidates. We also include recent news articles about relevant issues and links to each of the major political parties. We invite you to actively discuss and exchange other relevant information about the 2011 election such as work your organization is doing or other links of interest.

Please note that Health Nexus is non-partisan organization and this Best Start Resource Centre bulletin is meant to share information about the issues, not endorse a particular political party.

F. HEALTH

14. SUPPORT MIDWIFERY: WHERE THE PARTIES STAND

The Association of Ontario Midwives website www.ontariomidwives.ca provides information about where the parties stand on midwifery in Ontario. Topics covered include: integration of midwives into hospitals; pay equity between midwives and comparable health care providers; funding birth centre pilot projects in Ontario; and principles of publicly funded health care being accessible, portable, universal, and comprehensive.

<http://www.ontariomidwives.ca/support/parties>

15. CANADIAN PAEDIATRIC SOCIETY (CPS) LETTER TO POLITICAL LEADERS

The CPS is canvassing the political leaders of three major political parties for their platforms on three key issues which have a significant impact on the health and well-being of children: childhood poverty, mental health, and obesity.

<http://www.cps.ca/English/Advocacy/AdvocacyUploadRead.asp?AdvocacyID=153>

16. FRONTLINEVOICES.CA

Health care is a prime concern of many Ontarians. This website allows patients and health care professionals to speak out anonymously and share their health care stories without reprisal. It is hoped that stories and views will be shared to help shape the provincial election outcome

<http://www.frontlinevoices.ca/>

17. ONTARIO HEALTH CARE CHALLENGE: PUT THE CARE BACK IN HEALTH CARE

The health care challenge is a democratic forum to identify and raise the issues that Ontarians care about leading into the provincial election. This website provides information about the issues collected.
